Sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease in Northern England. Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease is an invariably fatal neurodegenerative disorder, and its prevalence is similar worldwide. We examined whether the occurrence of sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease is associated with geography in the United Kingdom. We used laboratory-confirmed cases from all regions of the United Kingdom during 1988 to 1997 to map the occurrence of sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease using the local case:population ratio as a measure of spatial heterogeneity. We identified a significantly higher incidence of sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease in Northern England compared with the rest of the United Kingdom (33.2 vs 10.3 per million, respectively). We also observed a higher incidence in West Yorkshire than in the rest of the United Kingdom. These observations may reflect natural or artificial population differences.

Q: Redirecting PHP files to https with .htaccess with Wordpress I have a problem redirecting my PHP file to https on my website. With this .htaccess file, I was able to redirect the URL of the PHP file to the https version of it. However, when I use that link, Wordpress will load the PHP file as if it was on my domain, even though it is not. When I use the direct link of the PHP file, it works fine. I have checked for other similar problems but I could not find anything close to my issue. This is my .htaccess file: # BEGIN WordPress RewriteEngine On RewriteBase / RewriteRule ^index\.php$ - [L] RewriteCond %{REQUEST_FILENAME}!-f RewriteCond %{REQUEST_FILENAME}!-d RewriteRule ./index.php [L] # END WordPress What I want to achieve is to redirect any non-HTTPS requests to the https version of the PHP file without Wordpress loading the PHP file. A: Well, when you open the .htaccess you are telling the web server to redirect all requests to the index.php file from a non-HTTPS to HTTPS. Since index.php is your WordPress entry page (that means any request from a web server
