On Sunday, Barack Obama holds a town hall with CNN, Republican mega-donor Rebekah Mercer will appear on Fox News, and Hillary Clinton will host an event in Richmond, Va., hosted by an African-American civil rights group. With Bernie Sanders largely sidestepped by the Clinton camp as she prepares to name her vice presidential running mate, the race between the two is a scorching one. The Sanders campaign has made it known that it will do everything in its power to make life difficult for Clinton's chances of becoming president, should she be nominated. Clinton and Sanders can be said to represent two different generations of Democrats. For Clinton, her entire political career has been built on the championing of the middle class. As a senator from New York, she helped to create the Children's Health Insurance Program and sponsored the Family and Medical Leave Act. As ba244e880a
