Many of the latest features are being developed in the core XMPP spec, and have been incorporated into the XMPP features implemented in existing XMPP clients. But sometimes, those features need to be implemented in the protocol itself, in order to make the spec more useful to implementers. Such was the case with our recent News Transports Working Group working draft, which described the new News Transport feature. News Transport was envisioned as a feature for the protocol, but it will probably be implemented in existing clients as well. Today I'm pleased to announce that the News Transport Working Draft is now in the spec itself, meaning you 2d92ce491b
