Logos 5 Plus is the latest release of The Logos Bible Software Bible study software. Hawaiian Airlines announced today that it will begin daily nonstop flights between Honolulu and Mexico City from May 10, 2020, with fares starting at just $82. The airline did not say how much fuel would be saved, but it noted that Hawaii fares to New York or Los Angeles are currently $81 and $129, respectively. In addition, with the new route, the airline will offer 23 weekly return flights between Oahu and Mexico City and seven weekly return flights between Maui and Mexico City. The route will be operated on its Boeing 787 Dreamliners, which have a significantly more fuel-efficient operation than the Airbus aircraft on which they are replacing. Photos: Hawaiian Airlines' Boeing 787 Dreamliners The new nonstop flights are the result of a new partnership between Hawaiian and LATAM Airlines. Hawaiian will add Mexico City to its existing schedule of flights between Honolulu and Mexico City, which started in October last year, and to eight other LATAM destinations. Chief Executive Peter Ingram said the new flights are important for the airline's bottom line. "The addition of this long-awaited flight gives our customers the ability to choose a nonstop option from the Hawaiian Islands to Mexico," he said. "We're very excited to provide more affordable air travel options and enhanced travel options between Hawaiian Islands and Latin America." With the new nonstop flights, the airline will now have five daily flights between Honolulu and Mexico City. It currently has four daily flights between Honolulu and Guadalajara, Jalisco, in Mexico, and one daily flight between Honolulu and Monterrey, the gateway city in Mexico's northern Baja California region. It also has five daily flights between Honolulu and the Mexican cities of Puerto Vallarta, Guaymas, Ciudad Juarez,
