Back in 2012, the Midsummer Classic shifted from the much-loved Citizens Bank Park to PNC Park for the first time, a decision which was met with a not-entirely-unanimous wave of boos from the city's faithful. "I grew up in New York, so I've seen how they party, but it's really just a lot of inconvenience," a disappointed fan told the Washington Post at the time. "You lose a great ballpark." Well, the All-Star Game — and the World Series, which is set to begin on Thursday — has a lot more on the line than the logistics of where they're played, which, fortunately, will be the case for a few more years at least. This year's event is being held in Minneapolis, and Pittsburgh native Aaron Judge has been given the heave-ho, as our friends at Bleacher Report report: The Home Run Derby will be in Minute Maid Park in Houston, while the All-Star Game will be in the Target Field, home of the Minnesota Twins, MLB announced this week. That's in a tough one for Pittsburgh outfielder Aaron Judge, who'
