Antivirus Solution A virtual solution is usually a software application that runs entirely on a separate computer and is not installed on the target machine. It is usually designed to scan for and remove computer viruses and other malicious software (malware) automatically, without the user having to intervene. Installation The antivirus solution can be downloaded directly from the vendor's website. The installation wizard will install the software, perform a scan of the target computer, and ensure that the application is working correctly. Installation is typically fairly quick, depending on the complexity of the antivirus software. The installation may prompt the user to install additional components. After the installation is complete, the antivirus solution will automatically start. Requirements Typically, antivirus software requires a computer system that meets specific requirements: A minimum amount of memory is required to run the antivirus software. Depending on the antivirus software, this may be 256 MB of RAM or less. A minimum amount of hard disk space is required to scan files for malware. In most cases, this is a minimum of 10 GB of free disk space. Access to the Internet is needed to download malware removal tools and updates from the manufacturer. Some solutions have this requirement built into the software. User interface Some antivirus solutions are not graphically based, and require the user to select options from a command line. Some antivirus solutions are graphically based. Such solutions may require the use of the mouse, and may also require the user to manipulate controls. For some antivirus solutions, the user interface is a pop-up window. Other solutions may have multiple windows, all of which are readily accessible to the user at any time. Features Antivirus software may include features such as: Listing of detected and potentially infected files Scanning of compressed files such as .rar files Scanning of executable programs Scanning of shared folders Removal of detected malware Downloading of updates Data backups Reporting of statistics Guarantee The guarantee varies from antivirus vendor to antivirus vendor, but usually includes a refund if the antivirus solution detects malware that it
