Q: Is there any way to load and initialise a model in code in a Entity Framework DB first model? Is there any way to load and initialise a model in code in a Entity Framework DB first model? Lets say I have a set of models like, Website.Models.SomethingA Website.Models.SomethingB Website.Models.SomethingC and a database which has all of them. Is there any way to to in code be able to load and initialise the SomethingA model from the database, and then go to next value, to initialize SomethingB, and keep on moving till the last one? A: I would suggest using AutoMapper for this kind of scenario. It will allow you to do something like the following (incidentally, you can do much more than what is covered here and it is a very powerful framework):

var somethingA = _mapper.Map(context.GetSomethingA()); var somethingB = _mapper.Map(context.GetSomethingB()); var somethingC = _mapper.Map(context.GetSomethingC()); // do something with your mapped entities For

Q: Don't put "on the phone" in the middle of a sentence What is the correct way to say "Don't put... on the phone" instead of "Don't put (phone)..."? A: "Put (something) on the phone" is more or less formal English and is common in writing. "Put (something) on the phone" is not idiomatic. Don't put that call on the phone. Don't put the call through to voicemail. Don't put that on the phone. Don't put the call through to voicemail. Basically, the grammatical pattern is to avoid phrases at the beginning of a sentence - except when you're talking about formal phone calls. Q: Backbone -.on and.off with various.bind/unbind I was wondering what was the best way to remove all (or a specific) binding in the Backbone Model? See the code below for what I
