Apple introduced a new 14-inch option with the latest iPad Pro. But that size, though good for school children or a large tablet, doesn't make sense for most people. Apple's new 13.9-inch iPad Pro is a much more attractive option that will be able to help you get more done on the go. Want to know what the differences between the 13.9-inch and 15.4-inch iPad Pro are?

Here's a quick run down: Apple has added a new 13.9-inch iPad Pro The 13.9-inch model has the same A10X Fusion chip and Apple Pencil as the previous iPad Pro models, but with a couple of enhancements. You'll get the new Smart Connector

2.0 for charging and syncing with the iPad and Apple Pencil. You'll also get a new iOS 12 operating system that is able to track multiple Apple Pencils at the same time, along with supports to use Apple's Force Touch trackpad. A new front-facing camera

The front-facing camera is the biggest change to the 13.9-inch iPad Pro. Apple has replaced the front-facing 7MP camera with a new 12MP one that has a 5-element lens system.

This will enable the 13.9-inch iPad Pro to get better selfies in low-light conditions. Updated resolution The 13.9-inch iPad Pro comes with a resolution of 2560 x 2048 pixels. This isn't a major upgrade, but it's a step up from the current resolution of 2048 x 1536. You

KeyMaser is a powerful keyboard macro recorder that provides an easy-to-use interface for recording and playing back sequences of keyboard and mouse actions. The software can record different keyboard and mouse actions in a semi-automatic manner. For example, if you press and release the Ctrl key, KeyMaser will wait and record whatever you are doing for a few seconds. When you release the Ctrl key, KeyMaser will save the macro and play back the recorded sequence. You can run KeyMaser with a mouse (through Window Manager extension), or record everything you do with your keyboard. By default, the program uses Windows Task Manager as its recording target. If you use your own, you can configure it from the program's settings.

KeyMaser can run as a stand-alone application or as an extension for your web browser.
