Q: Python from text file gets characters not a string I am importing a list from a text file but for some reason it comes up as characters when i try to use.split. Is there a way to fix this? import os import xlswriter path = '/home/user/Documents/project' wb = xlswriter.Workbook('out.xlsx') ws = wb.add_worksheet('The List') path, fin = os.path.abspath(path), open('The List.txt','r') row = 0 for line in fin: row += 1 col = 0 col_string = line.rstrip(' ') rows = col_string.split(' ') ws.write('A' + str(row)) for row_num in rows: ws.write(row_num + '\t') ws.write('B' + str(row)) col += 1 wb.close() A: Your problem is that you're not actually reading a text file. You're storing the file's name in path, and using the file itself to read from. Either change path to point to the text file, or replace that line with: path = os.path.abspath('/home/user/Documents/project') If you make that change, your code should work as expected. General Safety Warning: Products sold by BBTS may be intended for Adult Collectors. BUt I did! Richerson got me a set of the Tom Baker Doctor's Regeneration Set so I could try it out for myself. So far, it's a ton of fun! Especially since this figure comes highly recommended. Do yourself a favor and pick up this set. You're going to dig it! Richer
