A: Just leave out your /exec argument when calling the command you are executing: /exec smbexec //192.168.1.100/user/user/Documents/$disk becomes /exec smbexec $disk You can read more about the $disks variable in the documentation here. Something similar is used in the ufw examples code, they are using it to specify a set of ports to allow through the firewall, for example: sudo ufw allow in on {any} to any port {88} The colon (:) is used to specify that the port you specify must be in that list and nothing else. The command has a built-in parsing function that can parse many common filters. Look also at the reference documentation page here. Q: getItemViewType return 8 even if no items exist I'm using the code below to set an item view type in my recycler adapter. I'm using this code inside my adapter for converting a shared string resource to the appropriate view type but it always returns the code 8. @Override public int getItemViewType(int position) { return position; } @Override public ViewHolder onCreateViewHolder(ViewGroup parent, int viewType) { // inflate the view View view = LayoutInflater.from(parent.getContext()).inflate(R.layout.item, parent, false); // create the view holder ViewHolder viewHolder = new ViewHolder(view); // set the view holder into the view view.setTag(viewHolder);
