Blufftiter DX9.Persistent hypercortisolism due to ectopic adrenocorticotrophic hormone-secreting tumor in a patient with craniopharyngioma and ipsilateral adrenal hyperplasia. A 21-year-old woman was incidentally found to have a pituitary tumor and clinical features of Cushing's syndrome. She had a 2-year history of menstrual irregularity and 1 1/2 months of amenorrhea. Ultrasonography revealed a pituitary tumor and a 7-cm mass in the tail of the pancreas. The plasma adrenocorticotrophic hormone (ACTH) and cortisol levels were very high. Serum and urinary free metanephrines and dopamine beta-hydroxylase were very high. She was given replacement therapy with hydrocortisone. After 1 month the pituitary tumor and the tail mass had decreased in size, but her clinical symptoms persisted. Computed tomography and magnetic resonance imaging of the head showed regression of the pituitary tumor, but revealed a remnant cystic mass in the midline. An adrenal scintigraphy showed multiple, bilateral symmetrical deposits of radioactivity, and computed tom

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Sigma Alpha Epsilon (ΣAE) is the first predominantly white social fraternity in the United States. It was founded at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee, in 1866 by Ashlie and Zillah ("Ash") Blankenship, William R. Adair, and Daniel Bradley. It was formerly known as the Order of Zeta Kappa. Its original logo consisted of the letters "ΣAE" arranged as an upside-down triangle.

History

Founding In late October 1866, after the death of Daniel Bradley, William and Ashlie Blankenship were walking through the campus of Cumberland College when the concept for the fraternity was formed. They decided to keep William R. Adair as their Chancellor to help with the organization. Upon their return home, the brothers drafted a constitution and bylaws. The organization was called the Order of Zeta Kappa, and was to become predominantly white. Zeta Kappa can be seen as a man's fraternity because it is led by a male leader and its leadership members can only have one name. The organization was viewed as a precursor to the current fraternities that evolved out of college football. The organization was named after its first chancellor, William Rand Adair, and was founded as Zeta Kappa at Cumberland College in 1866. The fraternity later became the first mostly-white Greek-letter fraternity in the United States.

History of the SAE fraternity at Cumberland Ashlie and Zillah Blankenship The brotherhood was formed in 1866 at Cumberland College. In 1867 it was originally called the Knights of SAE at Cumberland, but shortly after moved to the US Naval Academy. It received its charter in 1867. The brotherhood was one of the first to form at any United States college outside of the Military Academy, and was known as the Zeta Kappa fraternity at the time.
