The government admits that a lot of the smaller communities would never have survived without EU membership, and that the recent economic crisis would have affected smaller towns and cities far more than larger ones. Then there are the cultural, the diplomatic, the economic, the influence on world politics. EU membership offers a bond, a shared identity, a sense of belonging. It's the glue that helps them hold on to the dreams and illusions they've created. That is the course of history, perhaps even a prophecy. I can say that when I lived in Manchester, which is part of the EU
